The Coroners Investigation

At the end of the study day you will better understand the:

- legal framework, range of enquiries, relevant information and documentation to conduct an investigation into maternal, perinatal and neonatal deaths
- antenatal & perinatal care from a midwifery perspective
- causes of neonatal death
- information required by the pathologist in a maternal death

Why Attend

s37 of The Coroners and Justice Act 2009 creates a statutory requirement for all coroners' officers and other coroners' staff to be trained

This study day will enable the delegate to develop knowledge and understanding of maternal, perinatal and neonatal deaths

It will place the knowledge within the context of the legal framework and procedural requirements of the coroners' investigation following such a death

The day is suitable for any person working within or in association with the coroner service

Come along and find out about national guidance, share good practice and develop your professional network
